Connecting Minds

Join us at an event near you...

This invitation is for anyone living with a mental health problem to come along to one of our Connecting Minds events to meet others and talk about how you can influence local decisions affecting mental health services, change attitudes and find out about getting involved in projects in your area.

Why should I attend?

- Find out about the new Peer Support programme and Mind's plans.
- Meet others who are interested in getting involved in our work and discuss what you need to campaign locally.
- Join a discussion and listen to experts in peer support, people from Mind and local projects, the National Survivor User Network and local campaigners.

The events are open to everyone dealing with a mental health problem, those who are new to Mind's work and those that know us.
